WHITE WINGED PEACE

APPEARS ON THE HORIZON.

Russia Accepts President Roosevelt's Offer to Endeavor to have Negotiations Opened.

Washington, June 12.—Official assurance that President Roosevelt's efforts to bring Russia and Japan together to discuss peace, will be crowned with success was brought to the White House today by Count Cassini, Russian ambassador, who called by appointment and in the name of Emperor Nicholas formally accepted the president's offer of his good will and efforts to open negotiations tending to peace.

AN ADVOCATE OF CHAMBERLAINISM

Winnipeg, June 21.—The Duke of Sutherland passed through here to-night after an extensive tour of Canada in the interests of Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal policy. His Grace expressed himself as well satisfied with the loyal Canadian spirit and the general results of the trip.

BRANDON YOUNG LADY DEAD

Brandon, June 12.—Carrie Harrington, youngest daughter of T. M. Harrington, died here today, aged 22 years. She had but shortly returned from a health trip in California.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENCE

London, Ont., June 12.—The campaign has now come to an end and the electorate tomorrow will either approve or condemn the Government's policy in regard to western autonomy. Conservatives may be said to have succeeded in making the school clauses the clear cut issue both here and in North Oxford but how far the people of Ontario are to be influenced by sectarian cries remains to be seen. Both sides express themselves confident of the result.

AGED LADY CHARGED WITH MURDER

Madoc, Ont., June 12.—Mrs. Diamond aged 74 was arrested last night charged with poisoning her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wm. Diamond, junior, in January last by administering strychnine under cover of a dose of salts.

FIRE AT BINSWORTH

Binsworth, N.W.T., June 12.—A big fire occurred here today when two large livery barns were burned to the ground. All the horses were saved. All the other contents were destroyed. The fire started in J. S. Murray's stable and soon spread to Johnston's stable. A very hard fight occurred to save W. G. Murray's general store and A. W. Jolley's residence and butcher shop. The cause of the fire is unknown. Loss $9,000.

YESTERDAY'S BALL GAMES

Winnipeg, June 13th.—Yesterday's scores—Winnipeg 6, Crookston 1; Duluth 5, St. Cloud 0; Fargo-Grand Forks rain.

REGINA ASSESSMENT INCREASED

Regina, June 12.—The city assessment figures were given out officially last night at the council meeting. The assessment for 1905 is $3,981,413 an increase of $1,696,709 over 1904.

MILITIA EXPENDITURES

CRITICISED BY THE OPPOSITION.

Conservative Members Object to the Expenditure for Maintaining Canadian Defences.

Ottawa, June 12.—Conservative members in the House today kicked against the heavy expenditure Canada will be called upon to make in connection with the increase of the militia and taking over Esquimaux and Halifax. The militia estimates were held over at their request. At other times they are howling that Canada is not doing enough for the defence of the empire.

JUDGE LONGLEY.

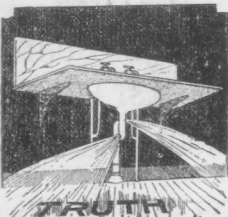

Ottawa, June 12.—Hon. J. W. Longley, Attorney General of Nova Scotia, has been appointed to the supreme court bench of Nova Scotia.

CANADA'S TRADE GROWING RAPIDLY.

Ottawa, Ontario, June 12.—Canada's trade shows a big increase a growth of $2,245,136 and exports $1,424,627, an increase of $12,824,447. The aggregate trade of Canada for the eleven months was $409,197,729 an increase of over two million dollars as compared with the same time last year.

DISCUSSED INDIAN EDUCATION

Kingston, June 12.—The Presbyterian general assembly today received an encouraging report of the committee on statistics. A decrease was reported in the assimilation receipts. The discussion was continued on the Indian industrial school at Regina. It was stated that the best training for Indians was in agriculture and that this could be done better and cheaper by the Government. Principal Patrick and Professor Hart of Winnipeg were strongly opposed to giving up the school as religious teaching would be lost and Rev. Thurlow Fraser said the school might be finally handed over to the Roman Catholics. It was decided on a close vote to defer action for a year and in the meantime to confer with the other churches and the Government as to the best policy towards the Indians.

Liberalism and Autonomy

A correspondent writes in the Calgary Albertan:

Of all the clauses of the Autonomy bills there is no doubt that supporters of the Government have given the most serious thought to those relating to education. Among Conservatives there is no anxiety because there is no responsibility. Their party has adopted no united policy and they are each individually free to either openly or privately condemn or support the bills, or while secretly approving to chuckle with delight at the difficulty that has arisen, or else without conviction or care to shout a loud condemnation in the hope of increasing the difficulty and gaining a party advantage. We have many examples, even of the last two, in Calgary.

With Liberals, however, it is a matter of graver concern. For the last nine years their party has given the country an administration and a policy that has aroused their admiration and commanded their constant and enthusiastic support. Now at least on one point the leaders of the party with the heavy duty and responsibility upon them of establishing by law the constitution of two new provinces have submitted proposals which appear to some to be a departure from principles of Liberalism as declared and fought for in the past. The Toronto News charges Sir Wilfrid Laurier with being faithless to historical Liberalism. So grave a charge, finding some favor even among those "who have loved him so honored him, followed him, lived in his mild and magnificent eye." Such a charge demands no hasty judgment, no decision based on half knowledge or present facts or merely recent memories of historical events.

First of all then, we must be quite sure of what was the origin of Liberalism and of what is the real essence of the Liberal faith. Our knowledge must go back beyond Tupper and 1895, back, beyond even Sir John Macdonald and 1867. Liberalism existed as a political faith long before there was a Canadian confederation and long, therefore before there could be any question of provincial rights. The essence of Liberalism in all countries, in Germany, France and England, as well as in Canada, has been the defence of the right of the individual as against the power of the state whether that power was vested in one monarch, in an oligarchy, or in the multitudinous democracy. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries Liberalism asserted the right of the individual conscience, the right of freedom of worship for the individual as against the power and the right of a united church and state whether Catholic or Protestant to insist on uniformity. That was the origin of modern Liberalism as a political faith, and in all succeeding times that has been its distinguishing though not its only feature. In Britain and in Canada Liberalism has supported freedom of trade because it has defended the right of the individual to buy and sell where he can do the best as against the right of the state to control his actions in the alleged interest of the whole community. Conservatism starts with the state and says, "Let us provide for the interests of the whole and the individual interests will be secure. Let us have one church and beneath its wings each individual soul will be safe. Let us have unity in trade, one national policy, and the individual will share the general prosperity. Liberalism on the other hand starts with the individual and says: "Let us have individual freedom of worship and of conscience and the spiritual life of all will be advanced. Let us each trade and buy and sell as we please and the industrial prosperity of all will be assured." Experience has shown that the result of Conservatism has been over to create class interests to sustain a state church to which only one class adhered, to foster monopolies in industry of which only one class shared the benefits. Liberalism therefore has often, it is true, taken the form of opposition to the privileges of a class and of advocacy of the rights of a whole people; but it has been only when those privileges have given power and authority not when they merely have given freedom of individual conscience or action. It is one thing to fight for the people against the domination of a privileged class in ecclesiastical or industrial affairs. It is quite another thing to insist that the people shall themselves be the tyrant and override the freedom and conscience of the individual. The former Liberalism has always done. The latter it has never done, and will not do today.

Now, then, does this apply to the question of our public schools? There is no doubt that most, if not all, Liberals believe that the support of our public school system is a prime article of Liberal faith. And they are right. But we must remember that it is not the only article. The sacredness of individual rights, as we have seen, is another and equally as important. Nor must we forget what was the origin of our public school system. In old Upper Canada, now Ontario, from which our educational system is borrowed, in the twenties and thirties of last century there were no common schools. There were grammar schools accessible only to the few and the rich. The Family Compact favored exclusiveness in education and oligarchy in the state. The Reformers advocated self-government in the state and in the municipalities and a common system of public schools. Their aim

As there is now in Montreal a factory devoted exclusively to the manufacture of this machine, it can be bought in Canada for the same price at which it is sold in the U.S. without adding from $25 to $30 to cover duty and charges, as do all the other standard writers.

This should be a very attractive proposition to any purchaser of writing machines.

In education was not—and here is the important point—it was not to insist on conformity to a type, but it was rather to furnish equality of opportunity to all, to each individual. Our common school education for which we have mainly to thank that great Methodist educationist, Rev. Egerton Ryerson, did not originate in a revolution, by which the separate schools of various denominations were swept away. It originated in a reform by which the common people, who had no access to the distant schools of the rich, decided to use the power of the state, to tax themselves for the support of common schools which should furnish to each individual child the opportunity to obtain an education. Equality of opportunity in the state was the reform of Liberal doctrine. But it was one thing to use the power of the state, the taxing and legislative power, in order to create this equality of opportunity. It was quite another thing to use that power, the rule of power of the majority, as Dr. Carman expressed it though his reasoning was misapplied, to force each individual, whether he would or no, to support, by his taxes and to use the exact system which the state created. The former was the true Liberal doctrine. The latter never was.

But, we are asked, did not George Brown, the founder of the "Grit" party, "the first 'clear Grit,' oppose the creation of separate schools in 1863? He certainly did. But there are some things about this also to remember. In his day Upper Canada went through a struggle of self-government for the overthrow of a monopoly of political power, for the prevention of a state church, with special authority and privileges. It was most natural then, that in his zeal for the rights of the people, in his bitter hatred of the rule of an oligarchy in church and state resting upon privilege, he should condemn and attempt to relieve any class of individuals from the obligation of conforming to the will of the whole people, to him class privilege meant class domination. In his day Canada went through a French revolution in miniature. After the destruction of the monarchy and class domination in France we all know that the greater tyranny of the people succeeded. Individual liberty of thought and action was as grievously oppressed by the national assembly as they had been by the monarchy and in the church. So in Canada in a lesser way it was but a natural historical result, after the Reformers had succeeded in overthrowing the oligarchy of the Family Compact, in preventing the establishment of a state church, and in asserting the right of the people to govern that the more extreme of them (for Baldwin and Lafontaine retired), should adhere with rigidity to the sovereignty of the people and oppose the attempt of any class to escape from its domination. Their victory was too recent to allow any concession, because concession, they thought would endanger the fruits of victory. But today we have enjoyed those fruits for sixty years. The right of the people to self-government is unquestioned. The power of the majority to impose its will is beyond doubt. For Liberals of today, therefore, the necessity of insisting upon the conformity of all individuals to the general will whether conscience permits or not, is not so urgent. We are surely now at last safe in making at least some slight concession to individual rights of conscience even in the question of our common schools. It is no answer to say that there is no religion in our schools and that there can be no conscientious objection made by any individual or class. The point is that one class of individuals does make objections on conscientious grounds. To disregard their conscience and to substitute for it the judgment and conscience of the majority is to do in another form exactly what Protestants rebelled against in the old days. We have made little advance if we refuse to allow the church to be the repository of the individual conscience, and yet say that the general conscience of the majority, whatever that may be, must now in our day of liberty, override the conscience of the individual. You need not answer that it is not a question of individual conscience with the class of people in question, but rather of priestly dictation, for you are then judging where you have no right to judge, and you are forgetting that even in Ontario no one is bound to be a supporter of separate schools unless he formally expresses his desire of doing so.

Now, of course, the foregoing is not to be taken as an argument that it is the policy of Liberalism to support separate schools of any and every nature and in all circumstances. The very contrary is the case. What is contended is (1) that the protection of individual liberty, the recognition of the individual conscience, is not contrary to, but rather in strict accord with the principles of historical Liberalism, and (2) that the enthusiasm for our common schools, which has always been characteristic of the Liberal party, has been due, not to a belief in the necessity of a rigid uniformity, but to the deep desire that every individual child of the state, no matter how poor or lowly, shall have an equal opportunity to secure an education and shall not be too much handicapped by his poverty in the race of life. If both these objects can be attained at once then Liberalism has achieved a double triumph.

It would no doubt have been for some such reasons as the above that Mr. Haultain would have, as he says, been in favor of the new provinces continuing the present system, even if no constitutional restrictions had been imposed. Just exactly how he makes out, however, that clause 2 of his draft bill would have left the provinces free to enjoy provincial rights, he has not yet explained. But of this again.

Dr. Herdman's Views

Calgary, June 8.—The Rev. Dr. Herdman yesterday gave the Calgary Albertan an interview upon the educational clauses in the school question. Dr. Herdman has been in Alberta for twenty years; during most of this time he was the pastor of Knox Presbyterian church in the city. In 1902 he was appointed superintendent of missions for the Presbyterian church in the synod of British Columbia and Alberta. He is the strongest Presbyterian in this part of the west and one of the strongest in the Presbyterian church in Canada. He has never in any way, even remotely, taken any part in political matters before.

In the interview today he said: "Please understand, I am not looking on this large subject as a question of politics. I do not even say that I incline politically to the party which your paper represents. If I express my views it is because of the importance of the issue and because we are nearing a crisis."

"My views are that it is not simply a question of what we, who are Protestants would like to have or see. There are conditions, compacts, historical facts, convictions of fellow citizens, and considerations of harmony in the state to be taken into account. Personally I would be glad to see a uniform system of education established; but I feel it is right to look over the whole situation somewhat carefully."

"The B. N. A. Act is the charter of the Dominion and as I understand it, is not limited in its outlook simply to the federation of certain provinces in past years, whatever interpretations may be fastened upon it, or in other words, the act has been accepted by the best authorities, including members of the privy council as applying also to all provinces coming in from time to time into the general confederation. Now, in the act it is easy to find sentences that refer to provincial autonomy and to dwell upon them; but in the question of education certain clauses, as I read them, distinctly imply federal superintendence, even specifying the duty of conserving the rights of the minority in cases where local legislation

The regulations under which a license will be issued, also printed form of tender and envelope, may be obtained at this Department or at the office of the Crown Timber Agent at Edmonton.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank in favor of the Deputy of the Minister of the Interior, for the amount of the bonus which the applicant is prepared to pay for a license.

I USE a Cuban filler in my Pharaoh Cigar. So do some other manufacturers, but there's a difference—not all Cuban filler is good filler. I make special yearly trips to Havana, so that I can buy the choicest leaves for Pharaoh filler.

These are grown in the Manicaragua district, in the Province of Santa Clara—the locality par excellence for fine tobacco.

The warm, moist atmosphere and marvellously rich soil of this locality fit it peculiarly to grow tobacco of the quality kind—delicate leaves, clear and flawless.

had recognized such rights, and dealing with the propriety of appeals and of necessary remedial legislation.

"When the B.N.A. Act was put into final form and passed by the imperial parliament, a section was added, in which the admission of the North West Territories into the 'union' was to be made, 'subject to the provisions of this act.' Thus the rights of separate schools for Protestants and Roman Catholics (not for Mormons or any other denominations outside the ones specified) are extended to the new provinces, under such modifications no doubt as are recognized by existing laws.

"Possibly some other road out of these conclusions may be suggested, and there may be a dispute as to what the existing laws did or did not guarantee, and some raw interpretations on technical points or in clauses loosely worded, may be offered and become popular. After all, would this be a wise line of action to take? Perhaps many of us feel a grudge against the 'dead hand' in politics, and in national records, but in this case, let us bear in mind that the 'dead hand' was primarily and properly in the hand of the Protestant minority in Quebec resistance and the educational clauses of the B. N. A. Act. Should we forget that confederation itself was brought about by judicious compromises, and the safeguarding of the conscientious convictions of minorities?

"Now, the original federal bill of the month of February was founded on the B. N. A. Act and the N. W. T. legislation of 1875. Thus a very wide door was opened for studying the country with separate schools, the legislation of 1875 having been one in national ideas. For myself, I took part with a will in church meetings in Lethbridge and Vancouver, which properly enough, as I think, opposed the bill.

"The amended clause, however, is founded on the B.N.A. Act and the Territorial school ordinances of 1901. This makes matters much more reasonable. Since the 1875 legislation ordinances and regulations were passed which have resulted in a most excellent school system, national in all its details even in the case of separate schools, up to the hour of 3.30 in the afternoon. For this result we owe much to Mr. Haultain, as minister of education. The purpose of the amended bill is surely to continue the present state of matters on the same high educational platform. It may be asked indeed, why adding to the general ordinance, the detailed regulations were not also incorporated in the bill? This is a delicate point for something must surely be left in the hands of the new legislatures; if not it looks as if then provincial autonomy rights were forfeited entirely. If we cannot trust them, as the heirs of the ordinances, to establish and adopt a system such as we have been enjoying for years back, how could they be entrusted with the rights of complete autonomy? On the other hand if any safeguarding is needed, this would be the welcome line, to my mind. There is no better system of education in the Dominion than here; one standard of training and inspection and text-books is what we have with no clerical control to interfere. This system is more uniform and harmonious and unfettered than prevails in many provinces which have no separate schools by name or by law but certainly have them in fact, and often under direct ecclesiastical supervision.

"Why should we not trust them here in this country? We develop another's best qualities in this way. We are an internal part of Canada, and in Canada as a whole two out of five, remember, are Roman Catholics in faith and conviction. It is easy to forget their part in the past history of Canada, but if we turn back upon the original compact of confederation, may not our action so far tend to undermine the basis of national unity in the Dominion? I am sorry personally that the rest of us leave it to our Roman Catholic fellow-citizens to have religious training in schools; I would welcome a system which would present to our children a brief unsectarian element of thought and definite ethical instruction to be imparted by the teachers and the text-books themselves. We cannot all have what we want but it is to be hoped that we will enter on our provincial life with feelings of mutual toleration and friendship which I think we will do if some members of Parliament and some agitators in Ontario will not say too much.

"In the ordinances of 1901 there is a far-sighted clause providing for the absorption of separate into private schools; this may be prophetic, not history but if it ever comes into operation it will be through kindly and helpful influence and not by virtue of inflammatory and overbearing words."

Wicked Calgary

From the Herald.—The session of the council was enlivened last night by the presence of a large delegation of ladies representing the W. C. T. U. After the communications had been disposed of, Mayor Emerson invited the ladies to address the council if they wished.

Mrs. Woodhall, president of the Calgary W. C. T. U., was the first speaker. She talked for a quarter of an hour, urging the council to place a tax on tobacco, to stop the sale of tobacco, and especially cigarettes to young boys and to make an effort to reduce prostitution on the streets.

Gambling in the city was taken up by Mrs. Woodhall at considerable length, and she appealed to the council in the name of the young boys of Calgary and the mothers and fathers and the good name of the city to check every form of gambling. Mrs. Woodhall said that the slot machine evil was growing in Calgary, and named two instances in which one young man had lost $28 trying to win cigars from a machine in a hotel, while another had lost $5.

She said that not very long ago a gambling house was closed in the city where a large number of young men nightly gathered to "win" and lose their money.

"If the council could have read the letter from the distracted mother of one of the young men who was gambling in this place, which communication I may say caused the place to be closed, you would realize what a dreadful thing the form of gambling is to mothers," remarked Mrs. Woodhall, with a display of feeling.

Continuing Mrs. Woodhall said she believed, and in fact knew the law against the sale of tobacco to minors was being violated, and asserted that two houses were present who would testify to particulars if the police were requested to lay information. She added that gambling was going on in the city, and this too, could be suppressed if the proper energy was shown by the police.

Alderman Jones arose to say that he knew that gambling was going on to some extent in the city. Some few days ago he had supplied the police with information about one place in particular in a livery stable, and the game had been closed the next day.

Mrs. Woodhall continued at great length and asserted that the hope of the community was the small boys of today, and unless some effort was made to keep them uninfected the country must ultimately suffer. She declared that companion evils to gambling were cigarette smoking and prostitution.

"We have learned that more than 63 places have been selling tobacco in Calgary," exclaimed the speaker, "and that illustrates the scope of the evil. Sixteen is the limit under the law at which age a boy shall be permitted tobacco. We want to make the age limit seventeen."

"Better make it forty," grimly remarked Ald. Ramsay, and the ladies applauded.

Then Mrs. Woodhall took up the case of the city solicitor, who had sent in his opinion to the executive committee some time ago in response to a petition the ladies had sent to the council, asking that a tax be placed on tobacco, that the council had no power to impose such a tax. Mrs. Woodhall said the W. C. T. U. had taken counsel and had been advised by two different solicitors that the city did in fact possess such power. James Short was one of the lawyers who rendered such an opinion, and she quoted from two sections of the by-laws in which it was explicitly stated that the council could tax merchants and all forms of business.

Mayor Emerson said that he thought the council was in sympathy with the ladies and that they would do what they could to comply with their request.

Ald. Stuart suggested that the ladies should supply the police department with any information they had of violations of the law and prosecutions would follow. One of the ladies suggested that if the department did its whole duty it would not have to be furnished information.

Mayor Emerson said he knew some of the evils complained of by the ladies did exist, and he had confidence in the police and was satisfied that the violators were suppressed whenever possible.

Ald. Thompson was satisfied no reputable tobacco dealer would violate the law by selling to boys. He thought this intimation came from Chinese. It was finally decided that the ladies should send in another draft of the tax bill, placing the tax on dealers at from $25 to $50, and the council would consider it.

HERE AND THERE

—Calgary's Agricultural and Industrial Fair opens its gates to the public on Wednesday the 5th of July next. Since the last exhibition very extensive improvements have been made in the grounds, particularly in the accommodation of live stock. A copy of the prize list for 1905 has just come to hand. The management of the Calgary fair is apparently sparing no expense in bringing out the best exhibits of live stock possible. The attractions this year promise to outshine all previous efforts to amuse the public during fair week. A splendid race program has been arranged including jumping contests and a magnificent display of fireworks will close each day's program.

—Strathcona Plaindealer: It is now pretty definitely understood that the C.N.R. will not build this year along the south side of the river between Fort Saskatchewan and Strathcona but will cross at the Fort coming into Edmonton from the northeast. The officials say they can build a temporary bridge in six weeks after high water, which will carry the traffic until their permanent structure is completed. The connection with Strathcona will be made by the present short line between the towns.

—Regina Leader: In order to terminate the uncertainty that at present exists with regard to the date of the inaugural ceremonies in connection with the new provinces, the Celebration Committee communicated with Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggesting that, as it is highly improbable that the bills will be through Parliament in time for July 1st celebration, the inaugural ceremonies should be definitely postponed and asking Sir Wilfrid whether August 1st could be substituted for the date previously fixed upon. The committee in reply to their communication received the following telegram from the Premier: "Your telegram received. Will consider your suggestion but can make no arrangements at this moment." The committee have in consequence decided to look upon it as almost definitely settled that the ceremonies will not take place on July 1. It was absolutely necessary to come to some such position in order that the C.P.R. and 90th Regiment might know what arrangements to make. In some respects it is considered that the postponement will be an advantage, as it will prevent the inaugural ceremonies clashing with Dominion day.

festivities of the towns throughout the West and place the C.P.R. in a better position to cope with the traffic at a later date.

—Strathcona Plaindealer: John Walter's new steamer "Strathcona" made her maiden trip up to the log dumps last week and had a very successful voyage. The up stream journey to Cropley's camp, 126 miles, was made in 28 hours. On Saturday she returned, making the run home in nine hours.

REVIVALS BEGIN TOMORROW.

After a series of successful meetings extending over a week and a half in Strathcona, the McMaster band cross the river tomorrow and open their campaign here with a meeting in the Presbyterian church in the evening. The meetings will be non-denominational in character. The company have a very high reputation for preaching and singing ability, and their meetings will doubtless be largely attended.

POLITICS AT THE LANDING

Athabasca Landing, June 13.—J. R. Boyle paid Athabasca Landing a visit on the 9th, and when it was known that he intended to be a candidate for this district a meeting was at once called to appoint delegates to attend the convention at Lamouroux. The general impression is that the Landing will stand solid by Mr. Boyle at the coming election. Several Conservatives have already expressed their intention of supporting him. Considering the vast possibilities for the future development of the country it is most desirable that we should return a member who has the interests of the country at heart.

The steamer Midnight Sun, which left here June 5 for Grand Rapids, loaded with H. B. freight and passengers, returned yesterday, having made a very fine trip coming up from Grand Rapids in fifty-five hours bringing four barges. She loads today for Wabiscaw.
